Fall 2003/Vol. 9-3

Tyndale's First Provost Installed

The installation of Tyndale University College & Seminary's first

Provost took place at Convocation on Tuesday, September 23, 2003.

Students, staff, faculty, and distinguished guests gathered together to celebrate the beginning of the new academic year and the beginning of Dr. Davey's ministry at Tyndale. Speaking at the service was Dr. Lee McDonald, Principal and Professor of Biblical Studies at Acadia Divinity College. Dr. Brian C. Stiller, President of Tyndale University College & Seminary, presented Dr. Davey and his wife Marion to the community. Rev. Lawrence Burkholder offered a prayer of dedication for the couple, after which Dr. Davey presented his vision for the Office of the Provost and for Tyndale as a whole. Music for the service was provided by violinists Sheldon and Xiao Grabke and pianist Tania Osmund.

Dr. Davey has served as Vice President of Assiniboine Community College since 1999, where he led in the development of ten new academic programs. He comes to Tyndale with twenty years of post-secondary teaching at both graduate and undergraduate levels, a post-doctorate year at Cambridge, and three years of service in Indonesia with the Mennonite Central Committee, along with extensive administrative experience in institutions of higher education. His Ph.D. and M.A. are both from the Institute for Studies in Higher Education at the University of Toronto. Dr. Davey also has a M.Mus. and a B.Mus. from the University of Toronto.

Dr. Davey comments, "I count it a privilege to be called to Tyndale, and look forward, with keen anticipation, to working with outstanding colleagues and students who are making such a contribution to the work of Christ in our world."

As Provost, Dr. Davey will lead in all matters related to academics at both the University College and Seminary, life long learning, distance learning and other areas that directly serve the academy.

According to President Stiller, "This appointment is crucial as we move forward to put in place the vision before us. Now that Tyndale has been granted university college status by the Government of Ontario, the leadership of Earl Davey is central to this exciting plan."

University College Enrollment Jumps Forward

The first semester at Tyndale University College is off to a roaring start! This fall, the number of first-year students has increased by 22%! That is a grand total of 214 first-year students! The total enrollment at the University College is up by 12% (Full-Time Equivalent).

Serving Christ amidst Controversy

—By Brian C. Stiller, President

News coverage has been massive, as the federal government has pushed forward in rewriting Canadian marriage laws to allow for same sex marriage. The issue we as Christians face is not over substance but rather, strategy. It's not about how should we live but what can we do to bring about change?

The challenge for thoughtful Christians is what do we do about it? Some protest, making known to our political gatekeepers what we think is their responsibility, not letting the courts decide, and at the same time reminding them that as elected officials they are accountable to their electorate for their decisions. Protest is important and valuable in being this reminder.

The danger with making this our only line of defense is that we get into a numbers contest, pitting our votes against others. Even though this is our democratic right, as Christians we need to see the issue in more biblical terms and believe in the power of the Gospel to impact our world in ways the world would not anticipate.

Jesus used powerful metaphors of light and salt to illustrate the very heart of our calling. Out of these rich figures of speech, I see two important reminders:

The natures of light and salt have ingredients that make them particularly effective. Their impact comes from the intensity of the light and the purity of the salt. Be what you are. Both bring change when released into their world. Light hidden under a bushel gives no light. Salt in the shaker gives no flavor. Get out into the world.

Evangelicals sometimes are trapped by a vision of mission that concludes societal issues are best left to the liberals. Given the dwindling numbers and loss of moral leverage of the traditional churches, increasingly, faith is pushed into the private world.

My prayer is that the issue of same sex marriage, like the issue of abortion in the late 1980s, will awaken evangelicals to understand Abraham Kyper's call that there is not one square inch of this world that the Lord doesn't say "mine."

From the Provost

The Integration of Faith and Intellectual Life

—By Earl Davey, Provost

Whatever the labour or vocation, Christ desires to be present in all the action and activity that is ours; he wants to sanctify all of our endeavors. We need not be burdened by a spiritual dualism that would divide the world of action into the "sacred" and "profane." As Christian scholars and students, we recognize that Christ wants to inhabit our intellectual life and learning.

Part of our journey of becoming whole and holy persons is the process of integrating faith and learning. At Tyndale, we believe that the Christian account of reality is comprehensive; we believe that the Christian account of the human condition, past, present, and future, is unsurpassable;¹ and we strive to connect faith with every aspect of the educational experience. We also recognize that other worldviews and the philosophical foundations that support them need to be understood, valued for their contribution to knowledge and truth, and critiqued appropriately as they depart from a Christian worldview. As scholars and students we seek truth and remain confident in the fact that all truth is His.

Also, because the reality of evangelical Christianity is theologically complex and culturally diverse, it becomes the work of Christian academics to continue to engage in theological reflection, to cultivate a dialogue within and across disciplines in order to construct a set of Christian worldviews that guide action and provide a framework for analysis and interpretation of the world in which we live.

At Tyndale we seek to participate in the intellectual life of our society, and, more broadly, to engage in our culture. In so doing, we strive to be 'light' and 'salt' in this world, not only critiquing the world about us, but presenting for consideration a counterculture which is nothing less than the kingdom of God.

Golf Tournament Highlights

During the planning there were questions about having the 6th Annual Mixed Golf Tournament on September 11. However it turned out to be a sunny, spectacular fall day and the tranquil and rural setting of Kings Riding in King City proved to be an outstanding venue for the day.

After lunch on the deck overlooking the course, President Brian C. Stiller reflected on September 11, 2001 and led in a moment of silence. Then it was tee time and for the next few hours the fairways were occupied by carts and golfers enjoying the challenge of the course and the beauty of nature. The President, along with staff and students, mingled among the golfers meeting new and old friends.

At the evening program, hosted by Paul Henderson, Dr. Stiller gave a brief update on what is taking place at Tyndale, particularly the impact of the university college status. A short video, highlighting why Tyndale is an excellent educational choice was augmented by students Nouhoum Coulibaly and Julie-Anne Brace who shared how God had clearly led them to Tyndale and what He is doing in their lives. Guest speaker, Michael Coren, wrapped up the day in his unique style.

A special thank you is appropriate for the golf committee and volunteers who worked so hard as well as for the generosity of sponsors and donors. Golf was not the only thing that united us on this beautiful September day. A deep commitment to the work of Tyndale is what made this special time together such a success.

Claiming New Ground...one brick at a time!

Tyndale's $20 million capital campaign to expand and upgrade facilities, offer additional scholarship opportunities and launch new and innovative educational programs is well under way. God has been blessing and individuals, congregations, foundations and corporations are catching the "Claiming New Ground" vision. The $11.5 million already donated and pledged brings us more than halfway to our ultimate goal.

With the exception of some alterations to the Chapel area, the many components of the capital campaign are still only conceptual drawings and architectural plans. However, over the next few years these exciting plans will begin to take shape as Tyndale grows to become one of the great centers of Christian higher education in North America.

However, we need everyone in the Tyndale family to be part of the vision. In order to raise the $3.6 million needed to expand the Library and provide an upgraded Student Centre we are asking friends and alumni to become Cornerstone Partners by buying one or more bricks per year for the next five years. Each brick is selling for $300 so, for as little as $25 per month, you can have a part in building the future.

And, if you live in the London, Kitchener-Waterloo or Barrie areas (there are many Tyndale alumni in these areas) watch for news of fun- and fundraising events in your area. We are helping these communities to create Tyndale support groups to organize one or two local events each year. The first of these groups is already underway in London, the city whose College of Bible and Missions merged with the Toronto Bible College which, eventually, emerged as Tyndale University College & Seminary.

If you want to be part of a community support group or would like to invest in a brick (or two, or even more) we would be blessed to receive your help. Please call Shauna at 416-218-6762 for more information. With your support, we will be well on our way to providing the necessary tools and facilities to educate and equip a new generation to serve the world with passion for Jesus Christ!

A Real Family Affair

At the First Annual Old Fashioned Tyndale Family Barbecue on September 15 we welcomed our first-year university college students and their families to the Tyndale family with thunderous applause – or was it a thunderstorm? You guessed it. Just minutes before the guests began to show up the heavens opened.

However, despite the rain washing up the outdoor component of our picnic it did not wash up the family atmosphere. Over 300 parents, grandparents, brothers, sisters, students and faculty came to celebrate the beginning of a new school year. With that kind of family friendly support, not to mention lots of good food, the now indoor picnic couldn't help but be loads of fun.

The informal atmosphere fostered a lot of interaction between the students, a good number of alumni and representatives of Tyndale including President Brian Stiller, our new Provost Earl Davey and the Student Council. What a great show of support from the family and friends of the new students!

▲ It was time for celebration as new students were welcomed to the Tyndale family.

Leaving a Legacy: It's Simpler Than You Think

Tyndale, like many ministries, is blessed to have a number of significant donors; those who can invest hundreds of thousands, even millions, of dollars, in the work of the Lord. But, an increasing number of Christians are discovering they don't have to be independently wealthy to leave a legacy to Tyndale.

Most families have more assets than they realize. And many of those assets are not in the form of cash. Some are hidden in stocks, properties and personal collections.

The tax regulations regarding these assets and their disposition are constantly changing. However, some of the developments in the last few years have created new ways for individuals to leave a legacy while, at the same time, significantly reducing their taxable income. In some cases the legacy ends up costing the individual very little in real dollars.

The vehicle 90% of donors use to leave a legacy is their will. A will is the most basic of financial planning tools. And yet, it is surprising how many people either do not have one or have not updated their will to fit their current financial realities.

Tyndale does not become involved in writing wills or setting up annuities or other tax shelters. However, we can help you ask the right questions and get the right professional assistance. If you are without an updated will and would like a free consultation, please call Brian Rennick at 416-226-6620 x6760.

And if you would like to leave a legacy to Tyndale to help in the training and shaping of Christian leaders for years to come, start your investment today. Call for your free, no-obligation consultation or e-mail brennick@tyndale.ca. All contacts will be held in strictest confidence.

LBI/LCBM Alumni Hold Biannual Reunion

By Robert W. Irvin

"Lessons from Life" was the stated theme when some 200 alumni of London Bible Institute and London College of Bible and Missions gathered for their 2003 Reunion at Temple Baptist Church, Cambridge on Friday and Saturday, May 23 and 24.

Testimonies of God's faithfulness through many years of service and ministry were shared by Jim and Ruth Cunningham, John and Audrey Harder, Carol Cossitt, Allan McLeod and Carl and Gloria Crate. Former faculty members Dave Bell and Don Leggett gave devotional challenges. The musical program and volunteer Reunion Choir were led by Dave Gast, accompanied by his wife Sharon at the piano and Lyall Conlin at the organ. Featured in all the general sessions were the PowerPoint historical presentations masterfully prepared by the Reunion Committee Chairman, Paul Estabrooks.

At each Reunion an "In Memoriam" time is held when those who have passed away since the last gathering are named, with 18 beloved friends so remembered. A special presentation honoured the memory of Dr. Alden Gannett, former President, and Rev. John Honeyman, former faculty member.

Dr. Brian Stiller, President of Tyndale University College & Seminary, brought greetings at the Saturday morning session and an update on current progress and future plans for the schools. Appreciation was expressed to him for his dedicated leadership during some recent years of fiscal concerns and restraints.

Featured recognition was given to the London Ladies Auxiliary, who for more than 48 years have prayed faithfully for the school and students, as well as performing many selfless acts of ministry in both London and Toronto. Although this group has now disbanded, they continue to uphold the school in their prayers and support. It was this Auxiliary that established the Jean C. Scott Memorial Scholarship in honour of the beloved former Registrar of LBI/LCBM. An offering was taken at the Reunion to assist in continuing this provision.

Class Reunions were held on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, providing for more personal interaction through sharing and prayer. In the Saturday morning general session special recognition was given to the Golden Anniversary Year Classes of 1952 and 1953.

At the buffer luncheon on Saturday recognition was made of those who were the oldest alumni present and also those who had travelled the farthest distance to the Reunion. A very humorous monologue followed the meal with the appearance of "Country Clem" (Alumnus Don Vair) who lightened the atmosphere considerably with his homespun humour and tempered jibes at some of his alumni friends. His tattered costume was in distinct contrast to the lovely table decorations crafted by his wife, Mary.

The 2003 Reunion Committee - Paul Estabrooks, Carl and Gloria Crate, Bob and Joyce Irvin, Lorna Arndt, Jack Hawkins, Gordon and Helen Rendle - would like to express their thanks to all who assisted at the Reunion, and all who attended, for helping to make it successful. Plan to join us in Cambridge for the 2005 LBI/LCBM Reunion on May 27 and 28. Please be sure we have your current address for our 2005 Directory and future Reunion mailings by contacting:

Interview: First-Year Student Jennifer Oates

—By Eva Cullis

Jennifer Oates, recounts the first month of her University College experience. She recalls it to be a time of meeting interesting people, encountering new ideas, and developing solid relationships with her classmates.

Jennifer was born and raised in Haiti, where her parents served as missionaries with United Field Missions. She lived in the small town of LaPointe, Haiti, until she was fourteen, before moving to the capital of Port-au-Prince, where her family spent the last four years of their missionary service. She gave her life to Christ at the age of four, when she realized that her sin was just as black as the crayon that she was coloring with at the time. She then began to understand that Jesus was able to cover up her "black" sin as well.

After serving with UFM for more than fourteen years, Jennifer's family returned to Toronto, where her father accepted a position as Community Outreach Pastor with Forward Baptist Church. Jennifer attended Monarch Park Collegiate High School and assisted her father with various outreaches and community dinners. She attributes the time that she spent helping her dad in this way to be what sparked her interest in cooking and catering. After graduating from high school, she continued on to study the culinary arts at George Brown College in Toronto.

Jennifer made the decision to attend Tyndale University College after graduating from George Brown. She chose psychology as her major in the hope that the Lord would one day use her psychology skills, along with the life experience that was gained during her upbringing as a missionary child in Haiti, to minister to the youth of another war-torn country.

Jennifer anticipates an exciting year, as her time at Tyndale University College continues to unfold. She finds the student body to be open, friendly, and willing to talk about their beliefs. She values the daily discussions that she has been able to enjoy with the students, as they study and learn together. Her favorite class is Hebrew Scriptures, with Dr. Keith Bodner, where she is learning how to interpret the Bible and to form her own conclusions. She finds the faculty at Tyndale to be friendly and understanding of the students, and appreciates the ready accessibility of her professors. Jennifer is looking forward to the next four years of her education, as well as to the valuable life experience that it will provide as the Lord prepares her for the future.

President to serve for another five years

After eight years as President of Tyndale University College & Seminary, Dr. Brian C. Stiller has agreed to continue to lead the Tyndale community for another five years.

Commenting on this decision, one

In Brian Stiller we have a President who is a servant leader – a man of godly wisdom, and a loving heart, who lives out the biblical principles of leadership.

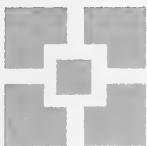

made by the Board of Governors this past June, Mr. Archie McLean, Chair, gave thanks to God for His provision of good leaders for Tyndale. "It's important to have continuity of leadership," he said. "The school has been tremendously blessed by God in this area. In Brian Stiller we have a President who is a servant leader – a man of godly wisdom, and a loving heart, who lives out the biblical principles of leadership. In addition, there is our terrific cabinet, our very gifted new Provost, and the best faculty we have ever had. We recognize that this is all God's doing and value the contribution that each person is able to make to our community."

Mr. McLean also noted a second phase in the extension of the President's contract. The second phase will begin in 2008 when Dr. Stiller, who turned 60 last August, will continue to serve part time for an additional five years as President of The Tyndale Foundation.

Centre for Mentorship and Theological Reflection

The Cross is our Theology -Martin Luther

Founder: Dr. Dennis Ngien (Ph.D.)
Theology Teacher, Preacher and Author

THE CENTRE FOR MENTORSHIP AND THEOLOGICAL REFLECTION is an independent ministry, dedicated to the study of Christian theology (e.g. Augustine, Luther, Calvin, Wesley, etc.). Its goal is to make sense of our beliefs and equip the saints to be effective communicators of the Gospel.

The CENTRE offers a learning experience in a context outside that of seminary or college. It aims specifically at those preparing for ministry, currently holding a formal position in ministry or serving as lay leadership.

The CENTRE sponsors table-talk mentorship on Bible book study (e.g. Galatians, 1 John, etc.), supplying categories and materials for preaching and teaching.

The CENTRE provides individualized mentorship on specific needs or concerns (e.g. spiritual direction, preaching, apologetic issues, etc.), including both spiritual and intellectual transformation.

The CENTRE assists needy churches in the areas of pulpit ministry and leadership development, which may involve intern students in the process.

Memorial Beverley Ruth Hurlburt

Beverley Ruth Hurlburt, BA, MSW, CSW

And what does the Lord require of you? To act justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with your God.

—Micah 6:8

When I read those words on the front of the bulletin my mind went back to my very first conversation with Bev. We were sharing what it was that gave shape and intentionality to our lives. Both of us spoke of this same verse from Micah. That conversation took place over five years ago. In June 2003, I joined with her family and friends to say goodbye and to celebrate the many memories of our various relationships with Bev.

Bev died after a difficult year and half struggle, living with the deteriorating effects of esophageal cancer.

Many of Bev's early life experiences shaped not only her choice of career but also how she went about her life. Her father died when she was only 12 years old. With a nurse as her mother and her Aunt Sarah as a doctor, Bev naturally became interested in the helping professions. She chose social work, and was clear in that choice long before she entered The University of Toronto. After completing her MSW, Bev joined Catholic Family Services and rose quickly to a supervisory position. From then on, she was always recognized as 'executive material.' Her final position before starting her own private practice and teaching was as a senior manager with Catholic Family Services in North York.

Bev developed two particular interests, which she loved to pursue. The first was as a leader in 'Good Grief

Groups,' walking with those who had experienced significant losses in their lives. Her other interest was in teaching, supervising and encouraging her students as they started their careers in family counselling. As Associate Faculty at Tyndale Seminary, Bev taught courses in Marriage and Family Therapy, Couple Therapy, and Responding to Violence in Family Relationships. As an Approved Supervisor with AAMFT, Bev provided many students and beginning therapists with a firm foundation in their practice of Marriage and Family Therapy.

Bev was also an ardent cottager, an avid gardener, and loved to drive water-ski boats for her husband and sons. Active to the end, she drove the boat for her husband for the last time on the Sunday before she died.

Many months ago, Bev developed a nagging cough that wouldn't go away. After some minor surgery, she was diagnosed with esophageal cancer. As chemotherapy and traditional radiation only made matters worse, the treatments were discontinued. Her health slowly deteriorated. As a giving person she found she had less and less energy to give. But as a giving person, she gave her all, right up to the very end. Now God has taken her home. Our hearts are deeply saddened, yet we find comfort knowing that God was with her always, and now she is with God.

Bev will be missed by all who knew her, but the example of her life will live on in our memories.

Bev developed two particular interests, which she loved to pursue. The first was as a leader in "Good Grief Groups", walking with those who had experienced significant losses in their lives. Her other interest was in teaching, supervising and encouraging her students as they started their careers in family counselling.
